

Strategy Overview

Benjamin Graham and David Dodd are universally seen as the fathers of valuation and security analysis. In their 1934 book Security Analysis, they were early pioneers in comparing stock prices with earnings smoothed across long time frames, preferably five to 10 years. Robert Shiller popularized this method with his version of the cyclically adjusted price-to-earnings ratio (CAPE) in the late 1990s. The Cambria Global Value Index applies a similar valuation methodology across global stock markets and seeks outperformance by selecting markets based on relative and absolute valuation. Research performed by Cambria and set forth in Meb Faber's book Global Value: How to Spot Bubbles, Avoid Crashes, and Earn Big Returns in the Stock Market, shows that, historically, future stock market returns tend to be lower when starting valuations are high, and future returns tend to be higher when starting valuations are low.

Fund Description

The Cambria Global Value ETF seeks investment results that closely correspond to the price and yield performance, before fees and expenses, of the Cambria Global Value Index. The Index begins with a universe of 45 countries, located in developed and emerging markets. The Index then selects the top 25% cheapest country stock markets as measured by Cambria's proprietary long term valuation metrics, similar to the CAPE ratio. Cambria then uses a valuation composite across traditional metrics such as trailing P/E, P/B, P/S, P/FCF, and EV/EBITDA to select the 10 most undervalued stocks out of the top 30 largest stocks by market capitalization within each country. The Index only selects liquid stocks with market capitalizations over $200 million, and is comprised of approximately 120 companies.
